

1 - Media Collection

☞ The Coyote was interested in watching a DVD owned by the University Library titled The Children of the Revolución featuring interviews with prominent San Antonio and South Texas Latinos recounting the stories of their ancestors who came from Mexico to Texas to escape the revolution. The film was directed by Lionel Sosa. Using one of the library's computers, go to the library's catalog to locate this DVD's call number and find it in the stacks for your next clue. Be sure to take the clue that matches your team's color.

2 - Chat

While the coyote finds information about San Antonio's history fascinating, he can't help but return to his first love: the San Antonio Spurs. He found a great book titled The History of the San Antonio Spurs by Aaron Frisch in the online catalog that he wants to check out, but the Texas A&M University-San Antonio Library doesn't own it. Help him figure out how he can check this book out from a San Antonio area library by using the library's online chat feature to ask the following: "How do I borrow books from other libraries that the University Library does not own?" Be sure to write down the two options. Wait for instructions on where to find your next clue via the chat.

3 - Makerspace

- Using the letters in the pile on the table, spell out the motto of the San Antonio Spurs. (Hint: fans chant this during Spurs games) Be sure to use letters that are the same color as your clues. Once you get a library staff member to confirm your answer is correct, you'll be issued the next clue.

4 - Main Stacks

☞ The coyote found a great book titled Deep in the Heart of San Antonio that he thought would be the perfect resource to help him find out more about the city. The book was written by Char Miller. Using one of the library's computers, go to the online catalog to locate this book's call number and find it in the stacks for your next clue. Be sure to take the clue that matches your team's color.

5 - Study Rooms

☞ Sometimes the coyote has a hard time concentrating on what he's reading if there's too much noise. He wanted to know if he could check out a study room for some peace and quiet. Ask a library staff member at the information desk for more information about checking out study rooms including the following: 1. Who can check out study rooms in the library? 2. What does a library patron need in order to check out a study room? 3. How long can study rooms be checked out for? Be sure to write down your answers. You'll be given a key to a study room where you will find your next clue.

☞ Be sure to bring the key back to the information desk.

6 - Research Guide

Books can be helpful but sometimes the coyote thinks they are too long to read so he enjoys reading articles too. He is interested in finding articles related to Texas History but really wants to read a firsthand account so he wants to find a primary source. Using one of the library's computers, navigate to the HIST 4346: Texas History Research Guide to identify a primary source database he could use (be sure to write down the name of one database). Ask the library staff member near the computers to check your answer. You will be given your next clue once you have the correct answer.

7 - Reserves

☞ The coyote wanted to read more about the siege and fall of the Alamo in a book titled Texas: Crossroads of North America by Jesus F. de la Teja. Using one of the library's computers, go to the online catalog to locate this book, paying special attention to its location. You'll find your next clue on page 202 of the book. Be sure to take the clue that matches your team's color.

8 - Get S.M.A.R.T. Guide

After conducting all his research, the coyote was feeling pretty smart but he remembered hearing about the library's online workshops that could help him "Get S.M.A.R.T." so he thought he would look into those. Using one of the library's computers, go to the Get SMART home page and look for the Scavenger Hunt box where you'll have to answer a few questions and get information about your next clue.
